1. The Founder—Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami

Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami was born in 1508 as the son of the lord of Kami-Izumi castle (located in present day Kami-Izumi, Maebashi city, Gumma Prefecture). At this time in history, the feudal lords of Japan were embroiled in a leadership conflict and this period is referred to as "The Era of Warring States" (Sengoku-Jidai — ca. 1480 - ca. 1570)

As the son of the lord of a castle born in such turbulent times, from childhood he devoted his time not only to academic studies, but also to the practice of Zen and training in martial arts. Having mastered the military arts of the Ogasawara school (a style based on the teachings and tactics of the great Chinese militarist and philosopher Sunzi), he earned a reputation as a great warrior and tactician. Although known as the greatest spearman in Gumma Prefecture (then called Kozuke-no-kuni), he showed particular interest in the study of swordsmanship and later evolved the style known as Shinkage-Ryu.

His training in swordsmanship was based largely on Katori-Shinto-Ryu and, later, on the two other major schools, Nen-Ryu and Kage-Ryu. In particular, he used the principle of Marobashi-no-Michi from Kage-Ryu as the cornerstone of Shinkage-ryu.

It is said that he gained full understanding (or "enlightenment" in Zen philosophy) of the principle of Marobashi upon the realization, during his study of the Enkai-no-Tachi techniques of Kage-Ryu, that the principles of Zen, in which he had immersed himself from his youth, and the philosophy of Sunzi as manifested in the Ogasawara school, blended and became a perfect whole in this Enkai-no-Tachi.

As a warrior, Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami was opposed to involving his subordinates, or those belonging to one of his fiefs, in battles in which it was probable that they would lose their lives and, whenever possible, avoided such futile and profitless conflict, thus displaying an attitude unusual among members of the warrior class of those times. It is almost certain that such thinking was born of long years of Zen discipline.

Even so, in an attempt to prevent the fall of Minowa castle, Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami, with only a small number of men under his command, invaded the enemy encampment, although vastly outnumbered and in the knowledge of almost certain death. However, the enemy commander, Takeda Shingen, who valued and respected Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami, ordered his forces to retreat. Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami, who thus escaped what had seemed to be certain death, abandoned the life of a warrior and set out on a journey to spread the teachings of Shinkage-ryu.

Normally, in swordsmanship, one is taught techniques for defeating and killing one's enemy with the sword; however, during his travels, Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami preached a somewhat different approach. He taught that "the techniques of Shinkage-ryu are unbeatable; this arises not from the needless taking of life, but from the true courage required to avoid unnecessary conflict."

Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami taught and spread these principles to his followers around the country in the belief that an increase in the number of those who adhered to these principles would herald the end of the era of warfare and the beginning of a peaceful society. Many of his followers understood these principles and, in their turn, did their best to further spread the teachings of their master. Eventually, these concepts came to bear fruit under Yagyu Munenori, master swordsman to the Shogun family, and were established as the basis of the 300 years of the Tokugawa era.

2. Yagyu Munetoshi and Yagyu Munenori

Yagyū Munetoshi trained under Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami from 1563 and perfected "Muto-dori" (the technique of disarming one's attacker unarmed), following his master's principle of avoiding the needless taking of life. He consolidated the techniques of Shinkage-ryū and continued to spread the art.

Yagyū Munetoshi's son, Yagyū Munenori, who served as "master of military arts" to the third and fourth Tokugawa Shoguns, Hidetada and Iemitsu, showed a deep understanding of the principles expounded both by his father and Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami.

As a feudal lord (Daimyo), he applied the teachings of Shinkage-ryū to his political activities within the Shogunate, at the same time spreading the philosophy of the art by sending out his many students to serve as sword masters to the households of various Daimyo. Many of these Daimyo became direct students of Munenori himself, who became known as "the great living sword."

3. Yagyū Toshitoshi and Beyond

While Yagyū Munenori and his followers adhered to the teachings of Munetoshi and Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami, emphasizing the spiritual aspects of the art, Yagyū Toshitoshi, who was sword master to the Owari Tokugawa household (a branch family to the Shogun), adapted Shinkage-ryū to the times and circumstances in which he lived and modified both teaching and training methods, thus establishing the traditions that have been handed down to modern times.

While the Shinkage-ryū as taught by Yagyū Munenori disappeared with the collapse of the Tokugawa Shogunate, the art as developed by Toshitoshi survived and has lived on through the centuries to present times.

Below is given the genealogy of Shinkage-ryū, beginning with its founder, Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami-Nobutsuna.

Watanabe Tadashige

The theory of Shinkage-ryu can be divided into theory concerning actual sword techniques and spiritual theory. However, it must be remembered that the two form a whole and, traditionally, have always been thus regarded.

Below are listed some of the traditional writings on which studies of the theory of Shinkage-ryu have been based:

Shinkage-ryu-Heiho-Kiriai-Kuden-Sho

Botsu-Jimi-Shudan-Kuden-sho

Shiju-Fusha-sho

Ren-O-Nana-kajo

Heiho-Kaden-sho

Tsuki-no-shou

Munehisa-Heiho-Monogatari

Fudochi-Shinmyo-Roku

Although studies of the theory of Shinkage-ryu are based on writings such as the above, or commentaries thereof, all of these writings derive from the philosophy of Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami called "Marobashi."

The following is Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami's explanation of Marobashi:

"The concept of offense and defence lies in adapting each of one's action to one's enemy, much in the way a sailor will raise the sail when the wind rises, or a hunter will release the hawk on sighting a rabbit. It is usual to think of offense purely in terms of offense and defence purely in terms of defence: however, there are elements of defence in offense and offense in defence. The practitioner of Shinkage-ryu should fully understand the meaning of the line from the Chinese poem about the "cat sleeping under the poenies" (i. e. apparently asleep, but always aware)."

The term "Marobashi" is usually taken to mean "the way of nature, freedom and energy in life." However, "Marobashi" has a dual meaning, being used as a term representing the inner truths of the philosophy of the Chinese militarist Sunzi, and also as a term for divine enlightenment in Zen circles. In terms of combat, one must know the enemy and oneself; one must make the enemy conform to one's own will and, when one makes one's move and the "lion" comes to take the bait, respond with all one's power, like an avalanche of rocks down the mountainside into the valley, or water gushing out of a burst dam. At the same time, the swordsman's spiritual state should encompass both the benevolence preached by Zen (the philosophy of peace, none-aggression and love for one's fellow man) and constant flexibility (freedom and nature in life), enabling one not to become totally absorbed or attached to anything. Accordingly, the practitioner of Shinkage-ryu should purge evil from his heart, deepen his understanding of humanity and confront the forces of evil with the courage born of truth. At the same time, he should always show benevolence to his fellow man, constantly striving to deepen his knowledge of mankind and to rid the world of evil, working toward this end through rigorous training and discipline.

In the history of Japanese martial Arts, Kami-Izumi-Ise-no-Kami was the first to apply such Zen philosophy to swordsmanship. It was in this spirit that he developed techniques for taking one's attacker's sword from him unarmed, without needlessly taking life, and this approach exerted a considerable influence over other schools of swordsmanship.

In Shinkage-ryu, there is a wealth of sword techniques and it is through the study and rigorous practice of these techniques that one can learn not only the movements themselves, but also the underlying philosophy and spiritual significance. It is essential that these two aspects, the physical and the spiritual, blend to become one.

1. Measurements of the Sword used in Practice

The shinai (bamboo practice sword) used in Shinkage-ryu is called the Hiki-hada-shinai (lit. toad-skinned bamboo sword). It consists of a leather sheath containing a length of bamboo, one end of which is split. The leather sheath is coated in red lacquer and the split end of the bamboo is at the closed end of the sheath. The bamboo is split into four down about one third of its length and the sections thus created are further split into two for about half their length.

The entire length of the shinai, except for the hilt, is covered with the above-mentioned leather sheath. A leather cord is attached at the base of the seam of the sheath and this is wrapped and tied around the hilt. For practice purposes, the seam of the sheath is used as the blade.

Given below are the measurements for the shinai:

Shinai for adults: 97 ~ 100 cm (Hilt: 21.2 cm)

Medium shinai: 75.75 cm. (Hilt: 9 cm)

Small shinai: 53 cm. (Hilt: 12 cm)

Shinai for Children: 85 cm.

* The originator of the shinai used in Japan nowadays, which is still used its original form, was Kami-izumi-ise-no-kami, the founder of Shinkage-ryu.

2. Holding the Sword

The sword (shinai) is held with the left hand below the right (right below left for left-handed techniques). The hilt should be gripped firmly with the little, ring and middle finger, the forefinger and thumb simply resting lightly in place without gripping. The point midway between the bases of the forefinger and thumb (referred to in Japanese as "Tatsu-no-kuchi" or "dragon's mouth") of each hand should be positioned on top of the hilt. Regardless of whether it is being held at the upper, middle or lower level, the Shinai must always be held in the same way.

When holding the shinai, it must always be directed precisely at its target. The correct grip is extremely important.

The two hands should be separated by a space of about two or three finger-widths.

3. Shinkage-ryu Sword Techniques

In Shinkage-ryu, there are two types or classifications of sword technique. The first consists of the techniques passed on by the founder; these have been modified by the Yagyu family and handed down to modern times. The second type consists of techniques for contest devised by Nagaoka Fusashige of another of the major families involved in the development of Shinkage-ryu.

These are referred to respectively as the Naiden-kei-no-tachi or sword techniques handed down (within the Yagyu family and the Gaiden-kei-no-tachi, or sword techniques from external sources (i.e. external to the Yagyu family).

These two groups of techniques are set out below:

□ Naiden-kei-no-tachi

1. Sangakuen-no-tachi

Itto-ryodan, Zantei-settetsu, Hankai-hanko,

Usen-saten, Chotan-ichimi

2. Kuka-no-tachi

Hissho, Gyaku-fu, Todachi, Kaboku, Shokei, Kozume, Ozume, Yaegaki, Murakumo.

3. Empi-rokko-no-tachi

Empi, Enkai, Yamakage, Tsukikage, Uranami, Ukibune.

4. Tengu-sho-tachi-kazu-kamae-yattsu

Kasha, Akimi, Zentai, Tebiki, Nito, Nito-uchi-mono, Ranken, Ninin-gakari

5. Okugi-no-tachi

Tensetsu-ransetsu, Muni-ken, Katsu-nin-to, Kojo, Gokui, Shinmyo-ken, Hakka-hissho.

6. Nana-dachi

Kyochi-jishi, Ten-no-Seki, Yo-hatsu Kote-giri, Chi-jiku, Meigetsu-no-kaze, En-yo.

7. O-marobashi

8. Ko-marobashi

9. Ryoto

10. Datto-ho

11. Ni-ju-nana-kajo-kiriai

□ Gaiden-kei-no-tachi

1. Ai-Raito Hassei (Eight forms)

2. Chudan Juyonsei (Fourteen forms)

3. Gedan Hassei (Eight forms)

4. Nochi-no-Raito Jusansei (Thirteen forms)

5. Zoku-raito Nanasei (Seven forms)

6. Zoku-raito Hassei (Eight forms)

7. Zoku-raito Sansei (Three forms)

8. Ko-marobashi-hen (Thirteen forms)

9. Gai-sei-ho (Eighty-seven forms)

10. Others

4. Main Postures

1) "Kurai"

Postures usually used in Shinkage-ryu are called "Kurai" in Japanese. Broadly speaking, there are three types of posture, Jodan or upper level, Chudan or middle level and Gedan or lower level, and each of these is sub-divided into variously named postures. Below are given some examples of each level:

Jodan : Sei-raito (Pics. 1), Jun-raito,

Gyaku-raito, Yoko-raito (Pic. 2), Kasumi, Kojo, Hasso (Pic. 3) Shiteki-sei (Pic.4)

Chudan: Massugu (Pics. 5), Seigan (Pic. 6), Jokaku-jun (Pic. 7), Jokaku-gyaku (Pic. 8)

Gedan: Massugu, Jun-sha, Gyaku-sha, Hiza-sha, Wai-sha

2) Mukei-no-kurai (Neutral Posture)

In Shinkage-ryu, this posture is of central importance as all other postures can be adopted from this one in a single movement.

▷ “Mukei”, which literally means “formless”, is referred to in the writings of the famous Chinese military strategist Sung-Zi.

In a passage from the chapter “Emptiness and Solidity” from “The Art of War”, he explains that a person standing in Mukei can not be defeated since the posture, by its very “formlessness,” renders it impossible to read intent or purpose.

5. Bowing

In Shinkage-ryu, the following three forms of bow are practised. The photographs illustrate the third of these, i.e. the kneeling bow.

a. Sokou-rei (“Fingernail” Bow)

This form was used in bowing to members of the nobility and in military circles

b. Tachi-rei (Standing Bow)

This bow is performed standing with the Shinai held at the side in the left hand.

c. Za-rei (Kneeling Bow. Pics. 1 ~ 47)

This is the most usual type of bow practised in Shinkage-ryu. The distance between the two people kneeling is 5.4 m - 9.0 m.

Pics. 1 ~ 4

The Shinai is held at the side in the left hand. Both people stand at the usual distance (see above) and lower themselves into formal kneeling posture.

Pics. 5 ~ 9

Draw the sword with the right hand and lay it on the floor in front of you.

Pics. 10 ~ 12

Lightly clasp both hands with the thumb nails resting lightly against the pads of the middle fingers. Lightly rest the nails of the four fingers (index to little) on the floor by your knees and direct the eyes at a point around your opponent's knees.

Pics. 13 ~ 17

Pick up the sword with both hands and stand, raising the right knee first. Pics. 13 ~ 17 Pick up the sword with both hands and stand, raising the right knee first.

Pics. 18 ~ 32

Front view of pics. 1-17

Pics. 33 ~ 38

Move into the formal kneeling posture holding the sword with both hands. Place the sword directly in front of yourself with the right hand. The sword should be pointing directly at your opponent.

Pics. 39 ~ 43

Rest both hands lightly on the floor by the knees, as before, lowering the eyes to the opponent's knees; then pick up the sword with the right hand and pass it to the left.

Pics. 44 ~ 47

Stand raising the right knee first. Take one step back on the left foot, drawing up the right, and bow.

☞ Pics. 33 ~ 47 illustrate the bow performed at the end of practice.

6. Den-i (Rankings)

Rankings represent the various stages in one's progress and, in most martial arts today, these are expressed in Dan or Kyu grades. However, in Shinkage-ryu, the following rankings are used and each requires the attainment of certain standards and the acquisition of certain techniques before they are awarded.

1. Omote 2. O-marobashi 3. Ko-marobashi
4. Tengu-sho 5. Tengu-sho-oku 6. Kari-mokuroku 7. Mokuroku 8. Gaiden 9. Naiden 10. Kaiden

Shidachi : advances his left foot slightly on an imaginary line extending from Uchidachi's centre and draws back his right foot and the Shinai in a large movement, adopting the posture known as Sha.

Pic. 6 - 18

4. Usen-saten

5. Chotan-ichimi

Performed without a break.

Pics. 1 ~ 14

Shidachi (in Massugu-chudan (straight middle level)) and Uchidachi (in Seigan) both perform a movement called Aya-okeru. Shidachi performs a slow vertical cutting movement (without making contact with Uchidachi's Shinai) in time with his own breathing. Uchidachi matches Shidachi's movements, but cutting diagonally, as he is standing in Seigan. In performing this movement, Shidachi and Uchidachi are seeking weak points in each other.

Pics. 15 ~ 39

Shidachi : after the third cut, reverses his Shinai and attacks the right side of Uchidachi's neck, advancing three paces moving from the right foot first. After the third pace, Shidachi steps out to his left rear on his left foot and begins to retreat adopting Jun (normal) Seigan as he does so.

Uchidachi (in Seigan) and Shidachi (in Massugu Chudan) both perform the Aya-o-kiru movement, as at the beginning of form 4.

Pics. 67 ~ 71

Shidachi : after the last cut, lowers his Shinai, at the same time advancing his right foot half a pace. Drawing back his right shoulder and foot, he holds his Shinai in the posture illustrated (known as Gyakusha or Chotan-ichimi-no-sha).

Pics. 72 ~ 75

Pics. 73 ~ 76, 76' *77 ~ 80

Shidachi : faces Uchidachi directly and, stepping forward on his left foot, cuts down in time with Uchidachi's attack, striking Uchidachi's right hand. Shidachi turns the Shinai so that the "blade" is against Uchidachi's wrist and draws it back, cutting the wrist.

Pics. 81 ~ 86

Uchidachi and Shidachi both draw back into Mukei (neutral posture).

Pics. 1 - 7

Shidachi: standing at the right corner of the practice area, raises his Shinai into high Seigan, changing his grip so that the left hand is uppermost.

Pics. 8 - 9

Uchidachi: also assumes high Seigan, pointing his Shinai directly at the centre of Shidachi's face.

Pics. 10 - 11

and showing Uchidachi his left side, he cuts at Uchidachi's left hand.

Pic. 12

Shidachi: withdraws on his right foot and draws his Shinai in close in Gedan (low level).

Pics. 13 - 15

Uchidachi: moves in on his right foot and cuts straight down at Shidachi's right arm.

Pics. 15 - 25

Shidachi: withdraws on his right foot, returning to his original Jodan (upper level), then cuts Uchidachi's right hand.

2. Gyaku-fu

raises his Shinai into upper Hasso.

Uchidachi: assumes Massugu-chudan (direct middle-level position).

Shidachi: advances one step on his left foot, moves his right foot a little ahead of the left and feints a cut over Uchidachi's Shinai. At this point, Uchidachi takes a large step back on his right foot and raises his sword into upper Raito. Shidachi steps out to his left rear corner, withdrawing into Gyaku-sha.

Pics. 14 - 18

Uchidachi: in a large movement with the Shinai arcing over Shidachi's head, cuts at Shidachi's right shoulder.

Pics. 16 - 19

Shidachi: bringing the left foot up in front of the right, cuts Uchidachi's right forearm and, opening his posture, bears down against Uchidachi's Shinai.

3. Todachi

Pics. 1 - 13

Uchidachi (in Seigan) and Shidachi (in Massugu-chudan) performs the Aya-o-kiru movement. (Refer to form 4 of Sangakuen-no-tachi for a description.)

Shidachi: breaks the rhythm and drops into the Todachi-no-sha posture.

Pics. 13 - 15

Uchidachi: moves into low Seigan and cuts down in a line form Shidachi's left shoulder to his left forearm (right foot forward.)

Pics. 15 - 20

Shidachi: swings his Shinai from the low posture in an arc in front of his right shoulder cutting down against the hilt of Uchidachi's Shinai (although there is actually no hilt on the Shinai) and both of Uchidachi's hands. (Kuneri-uchi).

Pics. 21 - 33

Uchidachi: draws back from his back foot, raising his Shinai into Hasso.

Shidachi: executes Ni-no-kiri (secondary cut) exactly as in Sangakuen-no-tachi.

4. Ka-boku

Pic. 1

Uchidachi and Shidachi both adopt a right Chudan (middle-level) posture.

Pics.2 - 5

Shidachi: advances on Uchidachi.

Pics. 6 - 7

Uchidachi: when Shidachi comes within range, attempts to cut his left arm.

Pics. 8 - 10

Shidachi: cuts Uchidachi's left hand on the hilt and turns his body back to the left, bearing down on Uchidachi's hand.

5. Sho-kei

Pics. 1 - 6Uchidachi:

raises his Shinai into Raito with the left foot forward.

Shidachi:

holds his sword in a low position with the right hand against the back of the "blade", right side of the body turned towards Uchidachi. In
this posture,
he advances
on Uchidachi.

Pic. 7

Uchidachi: jumping in on his right foot, attempts to cut Shidachi's head.

Pics. 8 - 13

Shidachi: receives the cut on the "blade" of his Shinai and deflects it down. Jumping in on the right foot, he then thrusts the "blade" against Uchidachi's throat.

6. Kozume

Pics. 1 - 5

Uchidachi: holds his Shinai in Hiza-sha (right foot forward with the sword held in line with the knee).

Shidachi: raises his Shinai from Chudan (middle level) so that the tip of the Shinai is angled slightly downward. Shidachi then advances to within striking range of Uchidachi.

Pics. 6 - 7

Uchidachi: with the right foot forward and the right side of the body turned towards Shidachi, attacks Shidachi's left hand with a vertical cut.

Pics. 7 - 14

7. Ozume

8. Yae-gaki

Executed without a break.

Pics. 1 - 4

Uchidachi: stands in Massugu-chudan (straight middle-level posture) while Shidachi holds his Shinai a little higher than Uchidachi. Maintaining their respective postures, they advance on each other.

Pics. 5 - 9

Uchidachi: jumps in on his right foot and attempts to cut Shidachi's hands in a large diagonal sweeping movement.

Pics. 7 - 12

Shidachi: takes a step out to his left-rear corner, raising his Shinai into Raito. He then moves forward on his right foot, cutting Uchidachi's head.

Pics. 13 - 18

✱ Yaegaki begins at this point.

Pics. 19 - 25

Shidachi: adopts the Yoko (lateral) Raito posture.

Uchidachi: stands in high Seigan.

Pics. 26 - 28

Pics. 29 - 37

9. Mura-kumo

Pics. 1 - 5

Uchidachi: stands in gedan (low-level posture).

Shidachi: making small vertical cutting movements with his Shinai, advances on Uchidachi.

Pics. 6 - 13

Shidachi: with the final cutting movement, lowers his Shinai to Gedan (low-level) and moves around Uchidachi's left side with the intention of attacking Uchidachi's left wrist.

Pics. 14 - 17

Uchidachi: when Shidachi comes into range, raises his Shinai to the right side of his own head and makes a diagonal cut at Shidachi's forearm.

Pics. 15 - 35

Shidachi: in time with Uchidachi's attack, cuts Uchidachi's right wrist. Then, stepping back on his left foot, draws his sword down and back against Uchidachi's wrist. Shidachi then retreats to his original position, raising his Shinai into Hasso while maintaining focus on Uchidachi.

1. Gasshi-uchi

Pics. 1 - 7

Uchidachi and Shidachi advance on each other, both in Raito (when Uchidachi and Shidachi are both in Raito, the term Ai-raito is used.)

Pics. 8 - 11

Uchidachi: cuts straight down at Shidachi, advancing on his right foot.

Shidachi: also advances his right foot, cutting down in time with Uchidachi's attack, thus defeating him.

Pics. 12 - 20

Uchidachi and Shidachi both withdraw into Raito, reversing their postures so that both are standing with the left foot forward.

Pics. 21 - 24

Shidachi: once again cuts down in time with Uchidachi's attack, this time advancing the left foot.

Pics. 25 - 34

Uchidachi and Shidachi both withdraw into Raito and adjust their postures so that they are both standing in Raito with the right foot forward, each maintaining focus on the other. (This state of mutual focus after completion of a technique is called Zanshin). Finally, both withdraw.

2. Shitsu-Raito-Junsei

Pics. 1 - 7

Uchidachi and Shidachi advance
each other in Raito.

Pics. 8 - 17

Shidachi: once within range, advances the left foot a little, then, moving in on his right foot cuts Uchidachi's left forearm. Maintaining contact with Uchidachi's forearm, Shidachi continues to advance, driving Uchidachi back as he does so.

4. Senyokuto-Gyaku-Aikake-Kaeshi

Pics. 1 - 7

Uchidachi and Shidachi both raise their Shinai into Raito and advance on each other.

Pic. 8

Shidachi: just outside striking range, with the left foot forward, bows the upper body slightly as if he were about to cut down at Uchidachi.

Uchidachi: moves in on his right foot, attacking Shidachi's left wrist.

Pics. 10 - 11

Shidachi: without moving his feet, moves his head and hands back a little, avoiding Uchidachi's attack, and cuts down at Uchidachi's head, exposed after the unsuccessful attack.

Pics. 12 - 17

Uchidachi: receives the attack on his Shinai, then swings the Shinai in a circular movement round his head and cuts at the right side of Shidachi's head.

left forearm of the retreating Uchidachi.

Shidachi: when Uchidachi again makes a cut at Shidachi's head (left side), Shidachi steps in on his right, blocking Uchidachi's attack at the left side of his head, swings his Shinai in a circular movement over his left shoulder and cuts the right forearm of the retreating Uchidachi.

Pics. 29 - 35

Uchidachi: makes a cut at the inside of Shidachi's right ankle.

Shidachi: receives the attack on the "blade" of the Shinai, as before, and cuts Uchidachi's right forearm (left foot forward.)

Pic. 7

Shidachi: just outside striking range, with the right foot forward, bows his upper body slightly as if he were about to attack Uchidachi.

Pics. 8 - 11

Uchidachi: attempts to cut Shidachi's right wrist.

Shidachi: leans back slightly to avoid the attack and then cuts down at the now exposed head of Uchidachi, advancing on his right foot.

Pics. 11 - 15

Uchidachi: receives the attack on his Shinai and swings his Shinai around his head to attack the left side of Shidachi's head.

Shidachi: steps in further on his right foot receiving the attack on his Shinai over his head and swings the Shinai around his head clockwise, allowing the tip of the Shinai to drop as he does so, finally striking

Pics. 16 - 18

Uchidachi: retreating, cuts at the right side of Shidachi's head.

Pics.19 - 23

Uchidachi: cuts at the outside of Shidachi's right ankle.

Shidachi: lowers his posture and Shinai, receiving the attack on the "blade," swings the Shinai around his head clockwise, again allowing the tip of the Shinai to drop, and, stepping in on his left foot, cuts Uchidachi's right forearm.

down to cut the Achilles' tendon of Uchidachi's right ankle at the same time. To balance and add impetus to the movement, he swings his right hand out behind him, immediately retreating beyond the reach of Uchidachi's Shinai.

1. Ai-Kake-Jun

Pics. 1 - 5

Uchidachi: Advances in Raito.

Shidachi: Holds his Shinai with the tip raised and tilted a little to the right (right foot forward) so that, as seen in his own line of vision, it is aligned with Uchidachi's left wrist (Henceforth referred to as Jun (normal) -no-gedan). In this posture, he advances on Uchidachi.

Pics. 6 - 11

Uchidachi: Attacks with a straight downward cut at Shidachi's head.

Shidachi: Advances his right foot, receives the attack on his raised Shinai and, stepping in on his left foot, cuts Uchidachi's right forearm, swinging his Shinai round his head in a large circular motion.

1. Ai-raito-Aikake-Nagashi-Gyaku

Pics. 1 - 2

Uchidachi and Shidachi advance on each other in Raito. (When both are in Raito, the term Ai-raito is used.)

Pics. 4 - 11

2. Ai-raito-Aikake-Nagashi-Jun

Pics. 1 - 3

Uchidachi and Shidachi advance on each other in Ai-raito.

Shidachi: Blocks the attack in the same way as in form 1, this time loosening his grip with his right hand (right foot forward). As before, stepping in on his back foot, he cuts down at Uchidachi's head and advances, forcing Uchidachi to retreat.

3. Ai-raito-Tome-uchi-Jun

Uchidachi and Shidachi advance on each other in Ai-raito.

Pics. 6 - 12

Uchidachi: Makes a diagonal one-handed (right) cut at Shidachi's stomach.

Shidachi: Cuts down against Uchidachi's Shinai, deflecting the attack then, stepping in on his back foot (left), he cuts down at Uchidachi's head, advancing a few steps to drive Uchidachi back.

7. Ai-raito-Ato-no-Hane-o-Tomeru

Pics. 1 - 3

Uchidachi and Shidachi advance on each other in Ai-raito.

Pics. 4 - 5

Uchidachi: Makes a diagonal one-handed (right) cut at Shidachi's stomach.

Shidachi: Cuts down against Uchidachi's Shinai, deflecting the attack.

Pics. 6 - 14

Uchidachi: Draws his Shinai back to his left side and makes an upward-cutting attack at Shidachi's fingers, the blade of his Shinai uppermost.

Shidachi: Again deflects Uchidachi's attack this time by raising his hands to the left side of his head and cutting down to his right side. Then, advancing on his left foot, he cuts down at Uchidachi's head, driving him back a few steps.

8. Ai-raito-Hazushi-uchi

Pics. 1 - 3

Uchidachi and Shidachi advance on each other in Ai-raito.

Pics. 4 - 14

Shidachi: Leans his upper body back without moving his feet, thus avoiding the attack. He then steps in on his right foot, cutting down at Uchidachi's head and driving him back a few paces.

9. Ai-raito-Hazushite-nochi-Hane-o-Tomeru

Pics. 5 - 6

Shidachi: Avoids the attack by leaning his upper body back (left foot forward).

Pics. 7 - 14

Uchidachi: Draws his Shinai back to his left side and makes an upward-cutting attack at Shidachi's stomach.

10. Ai-raito-Hazushite-nochi-Uchi-otoshi

Shidachi: Avoids the attack by leaning his upper body back without moving his feet.

Pics. 7 - 13

Uchidachi: Draws his Shinai back to his right side and makes an upward-cutting attack at Shidachi's stomach.

11. Ai-raito- Orishiki-uchi

Pics. 1 - 6

Uchidachi and Shidachi
advance on each other in *Ai-
raito*.

Pics. 7 - 9

Uchidachi: Makes a low one-handed (right) cut at the inside of Shidachi's right leg.

12. Ai-raito-uchi-Sage-dome-Jun

Pics. 1 - 6

Uchidachi and Shidachi
advance on each other in *Ai-
raito*.

Pics. 7 - 16

13. Ai-raito-uchi-Sage-dome-Gyaku

Pics. 1 - 6

Uchidachi and Shidachi advance on each other in Ai-raito.

Pics. 7 - 15

1. Empi

Pics. 1 - 19

Shidachi: Adopts a Massugu-Chudan posture and waits for Uchidachi to approach.

Uchidachi: Advances in Seigan. As he approaches Shidachi, he turns the sword so that the blade is directed out to his right, crossing his hands, right over left. He swings the sword around the left side of his head, then, advancing his right foot, makes a descending diagonal cut from right to left at Shidachi's left forearm.

Shidachi*: Avoids the attack by moving his hands out to the right raising his right elbow.

⇒ As Bokken (wooden practice swords) are used in this series of techniques, the term "sword" has been used instead of "Shinai."

Then stepping out to the right on his right foot and stepping in towards Uchidachi on his left, he threatens an attack at the inside of Uchidachi's right wrist.

Pics. 20 - 27

Uchidachi: Raises his sword into Hasso.

Shidachi: Advances on Uchidachi forcing him to retreat. As he advances, he turns the right side of his body towards Uchidachi and turns the blade of his sword uppermost, aiming it at Uchidachi's left elbow.

Pics. 28 - 31

Uchidachi: Makes a one-handed (right) cut at the fingers of Shidachi's left hand, advancing his right foot as he does so.

Pics. 32 - 39

Uchidachi: Swings his sword back to his left side with his right hand and takes the back of the blade in his left hand at a point approximately one-third from the tip. Advancing towards Shidachi, he attempts to thrust the blade of his sword against his upper arms and chest.

Pics. 40 - 46

Uchidachi: Receives the attack on his upraised sword, and takes hold of Shidachi's sword, grasping the back of the sword with the four fingers of his left hand.

Shidachi: Brings his right foot up to his left, bearing down against Uchidachi's sword. Bracing his right hand against the handguard (tsuba), he twists the sword out of Uchidachi's grip, bringing the blade to bear against the underside of Uchidachi's fingers. At the same time, he raises the sword back over his right shoulder. Finally, he retreats from his right foot, keeping his sword raised high over his right shoulder.

2. En-Kai

Shidachi: Moves out to the side on his right foot and advances his left foot a pace towards Uchidachi. At the same time, he lowers his hips, and draws his sword back to his right side, the butt of the hilt directed at Uchidachi. This posture is called Jun-no-sha.

Shidachi: Matches Uchidachi's movements, stepping out to his left front corner on his right and making a cut at Uchidachi's right forearm, finally bringing his left foot round so that he and Uchidachi are once again facing each other.

3. Yama-Kage

Pics. 71 - 88

Shidachi: Bringing his left foot up to his right, then, withdrawing his right, raises his sword in a circular movement over his left shoulder and down past his left side, finishing with the arms crossed, right arm uppermost and the blade of the sword directed upward. The intention is to continue this movement and cut Uchidachi's left hand from below with an upward-cutting movement.

Uchidachi: Seeing the danger of an attack withdraws his right foot, raising his sword into Hasso. He then advances his right foot, making a descending diagonal cut from right to left at Shidachi's left knee.

Shidachi: Withdrawing his left foot out of range of Uchidachi's attack, raises his sword into Raito. Then, advancing his right, he cuts across both of Uchidachi's arms, and steps back, raising his sword into Yoko (lateral) Raito, the tip of his sword pointing out to his right.

4. Tsuki-Kage

Pics. 89 - 101

Uchidachi: swings his sword in a clockwise circular movement, using his right hand only (this is called Ma-no-tachi). At the end of the movement, he takes the sword in both hands and, advancing his left foot, he attempts an upward thrusting attack at the underside of Shidachi's arms, moving in as close as possible.

Uchidachi: Withdraws into the same posture as Shidachi, then raises his sword into Hasso, aiming it at Shidachi's left elbow and side.

5. Ura-Nami

Pics. 102 - 117

Uchidachi: Blocks the attack by angling his sword down behind his head. He then steps round to face Shidachi on his right foot and makes a cut, right to left, at Shidachi's stomach.
